As the CEE Judicial Network celebrates its eighth year, we are delighted to announce our Eighth Annual Conference, to once again gather our Network members from across the region to engage on issues that are most pressing for the judicial profession. This year's program takes place against a background of unprecedented change that has seen many judicial systems in CEE struggle with implementation of remote and digital justice solutions as a means of keeping the courts functioning in an accountable manner while maintaining access to justice during the global pandemic.

In keeping with pandemic restrictions, this year's Annual Conference will be virtual; we will have a two and a half hour format of panels and discussion, which will include a 15 minute break.

We will use this year's conference to look specifically at issues with implementation of digital solutions, and we will hear from experts in the field about risks and challenges. We will look at progress in the region as we begin to return to more normal, post-pandemic conditions. And we will share the results of our region wide survey on Digitalisation and the Courts.

We will also look at the continuing threats to the independence on the judiciary and to the independent administration of justice in the region, and the strains this places on individual judges. Special attention will be given to conditions in Poland, as a bell-weather for governmental attacks on the judiciary and the rule of law.

We invite you to join us to discuss these themes which are of relevance to all judges and others working in the justice sector in the region who care about the rule of law.

Central and Eastern European Judicial Exchange Network

Since 2012, the CEELI Institute has fostered and supported its Central and East European Judicial Exchange Network, comprised of some of the best and brightest rising judges from eighteen countries in the region who regularly come together to share best practices on issues of judicial independence, transparency, accountability, efficiency, and ethics.

The Network facilitates career growth and development for the judges, fosters peer engagement and produces concrete tools to better assist the judges in performing their duties. Network judges often undertake innovative projects in their own countries, and the CEELI Institute supports them in their efforts. To date, over 200 judges have directly participated in Network events and projects.
