Presentation

The long-term training periods will take place at the European Court of Human Rights in Strasbourg, France. Participants will normally be integrated in one of the case-processing divisions of the Court's Registry and mainly deal with individual applications, in English or French, from their country of origin. More particularly, they will

- examine and deal with applications in accordance with the Court procedures and internal guidelines; applications dealt with include in particular prima facie inadmissible cases and cases which can be dealt with in a standard manner;
- draft decisions, minutes, reports, notes and other documents;
- maintain correspondence with applicants and, where appropriate, with Governments and third parties;
- advise applicants on the conditions of admissibility of applications to the Court and provide them with all relevant information;
- ensure legal analysis and assist experienced case-lawyers in the preparation of Chamber cases for examination by the Court and in the drafting of Chamber judgments and decisions; attend the Court's sessions;
- undertake studies and research relating to the Court's case-law and domestic law as well as comparative and international law.

NOTE: Participants may also be assigned to the Court's Research Division. In that case, the part of their time spent on research assignments and projects, this will include in particular:

- To provide contributions for comparative research reports concerning national law or laws depending on the knowledge of different languages and legal systems
- To assist or to prepare research reports on requested topics in the field of the Court's case-law, comparative law or international law within the set time-limit.
- To write (as author and co-author) comparative law research reports under supervision
- To update existing reports on various topics. Research reports are confidential but the results are to be found and are referred to in the judgements.

Lawyers in that division also monitor relevant developments in the human rights field elsewhere in the Council of Europe, in other international organisations and at national level.
